In the heart of Luton, England, lies the town of Bury Park, a place that has been immortalized in the recent movie Blinded By The Light. The film tells the story of Javed, a Pakistani teenager growing up in Luton in the 1980s, who finds solace and inspiration in the music of Bruce Springsteen. As part of the movie's release, the Stockwood Discovery Centre in Luton is hosting an exhibition of vintage departures from the film, titled Greetings From Bury Park.

The exhibition features a collection of over 50 vintage departures, all of which were used in the filming of Blinded By The Light. The departures are a mix of original and replica props, and they provide a fascinating glimpse into the world of 1980s Luton. The exhibition also features a number of interactive displays, which allow visitors to learn more about the film and its production.

The Greetings From Bury Park exhibition is a must-see for fans of Blinded By The Light and Bruce Springsteen. The exhibition is open until September 29th, 2019, and admission is free.

A Journey Through the Exhibition

The Greetings From Bury Park exhibition is divided into several sections, each of which focuses on a different aspect of the film. The first section of the exhibition introduces the town of Bury Park and its significance to the film. The section features a number of photographs and maps of Bury Park, as well as a timeline of the town's history.

The second section of the exhibition focuses on the character of Javed. The section features a number of personal items that belonged to Javed, including his clothes, his music collection, and his diary. The section also includes a number of interactive displays, which allow visitors to learn more about Javed's life and his experiences.

The third section of the exhibition focuses on the music of Bruce Springsteen. The section features a number of Springsteen's albums and singles, as well as a number of posters and other memorabilia. The section also includes a number of interactive displays, which allow visitors to listen to Springsteen's music and learn more about his life and career.

The fourth section of the exhibition focuses on the filming of Blinded By The Light. The section features a number of behind-the-scenes photographs and videos, as well as a number of interviews with the cast and crew of the film. The section also includes a number of interactive displays, which allow visitors to learn more about the film's production.

The Greetings From Bury Park exhibition is a fascinating and informative journey through the world of Blinded By The Light. The exhibition is a must-see for fans of the film and Bruce Springsteen, and it is a great way to learn more about the town of Bury Park.
