Karen Kaufman Wilson is the founder and director of The Independent Producer Directory, the leading resource for independent producers in the film and television industry. The directory provides independent producers with access to a global network of production and distribution services, as well as exclusive opportunities to connect with investors, distributors, and broadcasters.

Wilson has over 20 years of experience in the film and television industry. She has worked as a producer, director, and writer on a variety of films and television shows, including the award-winning documentary "The Invisible War." She is also a member of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and the British Academy of Film and Television Arts.

In 2016, Wilson founded The Independent Producer Directory with the mission of supporting independent producers and their work. The directory provides producers with access to a wide range of resources, including:

- A comprehensive database of production and distribution services
- Exclusive opportunities to connect with investors, distributors, and broadcasters
- Educational resources and workshops
- A mentorship program for emerging producers

The Independent Producer Directory has become an essential resource for independent producers around the world. The directory has helped producers to find financing for their projects, connect with key industry players, and get their films and television shows distributed to audiences around the world.

Wilson is a passionate advocate for independent producers. She believes that independent producers are essential to the health of the film and television industry. They bring new voices and perspectives to the screen, and they take risks that major studios are often unwilling to take.

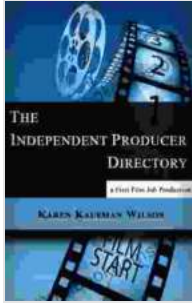

Wilson is committed to supporting independent producers and their work. She believes that The Independent Producer Directory can make a real difference in the lives of producers and help them to achieve their goals.
